Sprint 1 Report

Actions to stop doing:
The team is currently satisfied with the current process as scrum meetings are strictly held to a maximum of 15 min. Within those 15 min, every member of the team has had a chance to provide adequate updates as to their progress in the tasks at hand. Additionally, the scrum meeting times have been adequately devised and fits with all members' schedules. Finally, issues raised during scrum meetings have a chance to be resolved with time allocated after the scrum meeting for exactly that purpose.

Actions to start doing:
The team should better estimate approximate time for tasks. The team needs to work on communication as well, as it has been taking extended periods of time to come to a consensus as a group on certain things. Also, the team should work on getting out of a problem quicker. If the team is working on a problem and does not know what to do, the team should be talking with each other to solve the problem as quickly as possible. Also, the team should work on time management and getting to each other in a quick manner.

Actions to keep doing:
We were doing well with coming up with a basic site and talking about the infrastructure we wanted to use with each other. If we kept applying the communication we occasionally have to all the other problems, our productivity would be better. Research has been going well too.
